

'Super Naari – A Period Equity Initiative' launched in NSW Parliament commemorating Mahatma Gandhi

NSW Minister for Women Jodie Harrison, with Super Naari Awards 2024 recipients Chantal Mousad, Indu Harikrishna, Rushdifa Khan

An initiative of the Saroni Roy Foundation, 'Mission: 1 Million Super Naaris' is to create opportunities and equitable access to basic human rights for girls and women.

A one-of-a-kind initiative by Saroni Roy Foundation brought together government and community leaders, to commemorate the 155th birth anniversary of Mahatma Gandhi in NSW Parliament.

The event included a welcome address by NSW MP Julia Finn, representing NSW Premier Chris Minns and Australia-India Cultural Synergies keynote address by Warren Kirby Co-chair NSW Parliamentary Friends of India. NSW Minister for Women, Jodie Harrison, NSW MLC Jacqui Munro and NSW MPs Nathan Hagarty, Charishma Kaliyanda, Tim James, Matt Cross and Stephen Bali also spoke at the event to perpetuate and celebrate Gandhian principles and values.

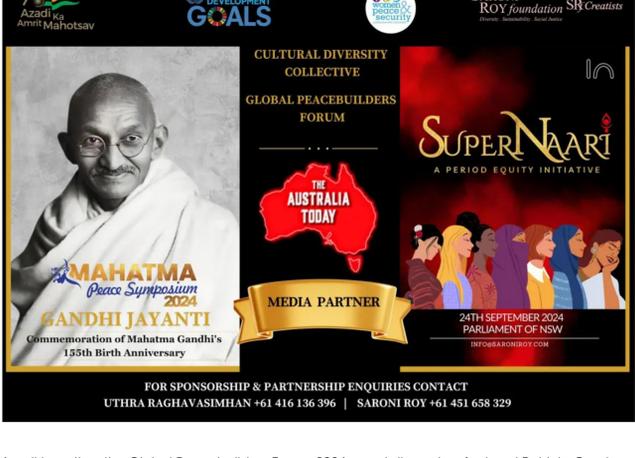

SRF is committed to promoting sustainable peace, resilient communities, and socio-economic development in honour of Mahatma Gandhi's Birth Anniversary or 'Gandhi Jayanti' (2nd October International Day of Non-Violence), which it has been commemorating every year since 2021.

2024 onwards, SRF's focus is on the 'Women, Peace & Security' (WPS) Global Agenda, highlighting Mahatma Gandhi's advocacy for the participation of women in Satyagraha movements, which marked a significant contribution to both women's empowerment and the promotion of peace and non-violence.

A call-to-action, the Global Peacebuilders Forum 2024 panel discussion, featured Patricia Garcia AO, Dr Astrid Perry OAM, Dr Anna Cody, Saroni Roy, and launched 'Super Naari – A Period Equity Initiative', to address the global peace economics crisis of period poverty. The initiative 'Mission: 1 Million Super Naaris' is to create opportunities and equitable access to basic human rights for girls and women, leading to reduced school drop-out rates, accelerated participation at work, sports, aviation, business and more, destigmatizing menstrual health, offering a life of dignity in vulnerable and less-privileged communities.
